The Government and Ireland.

Again the Cabinet has changed the fashion of its Irish announcement, and today its proposals will be in the hands of the leaders of both Irish parties. Prophecy is always risky, and prophecy about something that we may know this afternoom would be a highly gratuitous form of risk: we cannot discuss the Government's plan would be a highly gratuitous form of risk: we cannot discuss the Government's plan would be a highly gratuitous form of risk: we cannot discuss the Government's plan would be a highly gratuitous form of risk: we cannot discuss the Government's plan it it is before us in black and white. There is an unmistakable significance, however, in this altered arrangement. The Prime Marked and the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessity, is bent to the war as an immediate necessit ever, though it accepts the continuance of the war as an immediate necessity, is bent on peace, and bases its appeal to the Army on its pursuit of peace. Its programme our own inferences. The general inference will be that the Government fears is using all its efforts to provoke a revolution in Germany and Austria, and its power in this direction should not be under-rated. In the next place, it is taking the initiative in convening an International Socialist Conference to consider the question of peace. Finally, it demands the adherence of Russia's Allies to an active foreign policy openly pursuing the aim of reaching as soon as possible a general peace without annexations and without indemnities on a basis of the right not dare to accept partition. The statement which was adopted yesterday by the Belfast Chamber of Commerce shows that Unionist Ulster will only accept partition | times." The Council is the de facto governing body of Russia. The King and Queen yesterday continued their north-western tour, and were splendidly received in Liverpool and Manchester, in which districts they carried out important engagements, including the bestowal, in the presence of thousands of spectators in each city, of sundry war decorations. Docks, ships, hospitals, and munition works were visited, and Their Majesties witnessed some of the more important operations connected with naval gun and armour plate-making at the at Dublin Castle which has been long and land will still be a part of the British Empire. The Government did us great wrong when it refused to enforce military service in this country. It naval gun and armour plate-making at the Armstrong Whitworth Works, including the tempering of the inner tube of a twelve-inch may hesitate to right that wrong now, but the public opinion of the Empire could weapon and the rolling of a forty-ton section of armour plating. The entire day's ex-periences were successful and enjoyable. Their Majestics were everywhere received with destill impose on Ireland the necessity of asking for admission to the privilege and honour of military service. So long as a growing party in Ireland flaunts its anti-British sentiment before the world, no real settlement of the Irish question is possible. TUESDAY NIGHT. Mr. Bonar Law's announcement of the political debate, of "scenes" in the House of Commons, of general neglect of the issues which at this time really matter for the people of these islands. We take this copportunity, therefore, to impress upon the Government and on all parties in the House of Commons—especially the Unionist Party—the danger of even momentary neglect of one aspect the nature of prudential calculations. to be made known privately to the leaders present circumstances will be individual sparing for our neighbours of the things that are most precious as most scarce. We must recognise in all the prescriptions of food economy the dictates of altruism.

Healy wanted to know what leaders would receive the private communication, and mreceive the private communication, and Mr. Dillon declared that a Parliamentary promise had been broken, and demanded that the announcement should be made to that the announcement should be made to that the announcement should be made to the trivial that the announcement should be made to the trivial that the announcement should be made to the trivial that the announcement should be made to the trivial that the announcement should be made to the private communication, and mrealise that our country is now a present our country is now of the manual trivial that the announcement should be made to the private communication, and mrealise that our country is now of the manual trivial that the prescriptions of food economy the dictates of altruism. since the Irish question was now an inter-national matter. For once, I think, Mr. Bonar Law was rather grateful to Mr. Ginnell, whose naive inquiry whether, as "leader of an effective majority in Ireland." he would receive majority in Ireland." he would receive continue to ignore Irish unrest and Irish moderation for ourselves that the surplus land," he would receive a copy, dissolved the House in laughter and relieved the growing tension.

It is difficult to imagine for what reason the Prime Minister decided to adopt this roundabout procedure. There is nothing under the vast tractless sea, unusual, of course, in Ministers making private communications to the leaders of other parties. It is done every day "behind the Speaker's chair." The singularity in this case arises from the public announcement that such communications are passing, and the further intimation that they need not be considered confi-dential. The inference naturally drawn is that the Government has failed to arrive at a settlement, and is making an ad misericordiam appeal to the Irish leaders to help it out of the difficulty. That may, or may not, be true, but there is no doubt or may not, be true, but there is no doubt that any proposals that it may now put forward will have been seriously prejudiced in the estimation of the House by the unfortunate method adopted.

Irish members on both sides see no encouragement to hopes of settlement from the manner in which the Government has decided to make known its long-expected proposals. Indeed, the Nationalists take a very gloomy view of what is coming, besides resenting the manner of communication. Irish Unionists on the other hand sides resenting the manner of communica-tion. Irish Unionists, on the other hand, are not in the least concerned on the latter point. Both parties will meet to-morrow to consider the Ministerial message the Nationalists about noon, the Union-ists after questions. After the introduction of this Bill; the Consolidated Fund Bill was passed formally through Committee, and progress was made with one or two minor measures.

Some opposition was shown to a Bill the second reading of which was moved by Mr. Macpherson, the object of which is to enable friendly aliens to be called up for Macpherson, the object of which is to enable friendly aliens to be called up for military service. Towards the dinner hour the attendance got very thin, and it occurred to Mr. Jowett that this was a favourable opportunity for calling a count. The emergency had evidently not been foreseen by the Government, for only twenty-eight members could be whipped up, and the House stood adjourned at 3.15.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 16, 1917. The Government and Ireland.

Again the Cabinet has changed the fashion of its Irish announcement, and to-day its proposals will be in the hands of the leaders of both Irish parties. Prophecy is always risky, and prophecy about something that we may know this afternoon would be a highly gratuitous form of risk: we cannot discuss the Government's plan till it is before us in black and white. There is an unmistakable significance, however, in this altered arrangement. The Prime Minister has decided to sacri-Prime Minister has decided to sacristatesman, and we are entitled to draw our own inferences. The general inference will be that the Government fears that, on Monday next, Mr. Lloyd George must announce a failure, and that the new arrangement is intended to break his fall. If the scheme, when published to-day, is based either on the partition of Ireland or on the coercion of Unionist Ulster, one or both of the Irish parties will reject it promptly and emphatically. After recent events in Ireland the Nationalist Party, whatever its private wishes may be, will not dare to accept partition. The statement which was adopted yesterday by the Unionist Ulster will only accept partition as "a last resort from a greater calamity," and will enter into no relations, however able to secure her full participation in the tenuous, with a Home Rule Parliament hands to-day. In that event the method of preliminary announcement will relieve the difficulty of Mr. Lloyd George's posiof agreement lies in that direction only.

The Crisis in Russia. The appeal which the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates has addressed to the Russian Army gains but the case of General Brussiloff is different. He is not a politician, but a soldier, and, as we learnt from his brilliant offensive last year, Russia's most distinguished soldier. He would not have asked to be relieved of his command unless he had found the military condition of the Army incolerable. What that Prime Minister has decided to sacrifice that kudos of novelty and excitement which appeals to the most austere on peace, and bases its appeal to the Army on peace, and bases its appeal to the Army reducing the cost of feeding. ever, though it accepts the continuance of on peace, and bases its appeal to the Army on its pursuit of peace. Its programme is three-fold. In the first place, it is using all its efforts to provoke a revolution in Germany and Austria, and its power in this direction should not be under-rated. In the next place, it is taking the initiative in convening an International Socialist Conference to consider the question of peace. Finally, it demands the adherence of Russia's Allies to an active foreign policy openly pursuing the aim of reaching as soon as possible a general peace without annexations and without indemnities on a basis of the right Belfast Chamber of Commerce shows that of nations to work out their own destinies." call that is made upon the sorely-tried manhood of Great Britain. A few weeks In a statement which was issued in Dubli ago we learnt that wounded and discharged English soldiers were being hurried once more into the trenches. Today English volunteers are sought among the married men between forty-one and fifty years of age. In Ireland we have still 250,000 men of military age, whose disciplined ardour might yet turn the fortunes of the last battles on the western front. The contrast becomes more scandalous with every new hour. No politeness of politicians can obscure it in the present or hope to blot it from the faithful page of history. The English people will admit no Irish grievance against them so long as they have this burning grievance against Ireland. We say, therefore, that no settlement of the Irish question is possible—no real settlement between North day English volunteers are sought among industries, and it is important that Irish poultry

Mr. Bonar Law's announcement of the intention of the Government regarding the Irish statement created something like consternation among the well-wishers of the Cabinet and corresponding joy among its enemies. It had been clearly under-stood that the Government's plan, whatever it might be, would be communicated direct to the House of Commons, and it Mrs. Pember Reeves, the Director of Wood Service in the Ministry of Food, that sive postponements, wanted to know the meaning of this "tricky method." Most American Ambassadors are good speakers, but best of them all was the late Mr. Choate, in whom Great Britain loses one of her staunchest friends. He was a mine of amusing stories, told with a mock solemnity that added to their effect. I met him once at a dinner party, where he rather surprised us by saying that the British aristocracy reminded him of the Red Indians—they spent their days in hunting or fishing, and devoted their evenings to looking after the squaws. That was characteristic of his humorous outlook on life.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE (PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.) RELAND AND REFORM.

ARELAND AND REFORM.

A definite beginning, says The Times, was made yesterday with the attempt to solve two great constitutional problems. Mr. Long introduced into the House of Commons the Reform Bill, embodying the recommendations of the Speaker's Committee on Elections and Franthise, and Mr. Bonar Law announced the existence of a Government scheme for dealing with the Irish question. To judge by the reception of both speakers neither measure is likely to have an easy passage. The first was subjected at once to the uncompromising opposition of a section of the House, most appropriately, and we are sure most sincerely priately, and we are sure most sincerely expressed by Lord Claud Hamilton, who was a member of Parliament so long ago as 1865, and still speaks with all the "brisk intemperance of youth." The second announcement instantly produced an outburst from the Irish members, who regarded it as a "breach of faith," and from some nervous sticklers for the privileges of Parliament. But there is clearly a world of difference between the prospects of the two proposals. The opposition to the Reform Bill is the last stand of Conservatism against the inevitable. The great majority of members, and a still greater majority of their constituents, are clearly in favour of the bill, which reprepents by common consent an amazingly fortuseriously suggests that the present House of Commons is sufficiently representative to deal with the task of reconstruction which will im-mediately follow the war. We wish it were possible to be as confident of the success of the lovernment's Irish scheme. Unfortunately, the basis of the Reform Bill-an agreed compromise between conflicting interests—is still wholly lacking here. We assume that the first effort of between conflicting interests—is still wholly lacking here. We assume that the first effort of Ministers will be to achieve it, and there is little to be said for the petulant objection of the Irish members to being themselves the first to hear what the new proposals are. It would be almost useless to put them forward in the be almost useless to put them forward in the

THE BISHOPS' MANIFESTO.

The Bishop of Killaloe writes to The Times:—

A hint reaches me to night that the Nationalists may, and probably will, send a hint to the Government that they do not want to be apprised of the scheme beforehand. The reason for sending it to them through Mr. Redmond, I understand, is to place them in full possession understand, is to place them in full possession of the proposals at the earliest moment. > FRATERNISING WITH THE ENEMY.

Sesterday the enemy made a deliberate attempt, by a series of strong and carefully concerted attacks, powerfully supported by artillery and trench-mortar firing, to drive our troops out of Buile-court and the section of the Hindenburg line held by us east of the village. In all, four attacks were delivered by the enemy, and they are specified in detail by Sir Douglas Haig in his later report.

The net result, as regards positions, was that our posts in the western portion of the village were driven back by the fourth attack for a distance about 100 yards.

The French also report a great effort of the enemy, made on Monday evening, to dislodge them from positions on the ridge marked by the Chemin des Dames. The attack was made on a broad front after a violent bombardment. Under the French concentration of fire it failed, except at one point, where a fraction of the advanced elements.

will seize our country, and will enslave the Russian people.

The Council of Workmen's and Soldiers Delegates leads you towards peace by another way by calling for a new revolution of the workmen and peasants of Germany and Austria-Hungary. We will lead you to peace after having obtained from our Government renunciation of the policy of conquest, and by demauding a similar renunciation from the Allied Powers.

But do not forget, soldiers and comrades, that peace caunot be achieved if you do not check the enemy's pressure at the front, if your ranks are pierced, and if the Russian Revolution, like an inanimate thing, lies at the feet of William. You who are in the trenches do not forget that you are defending the liberty of the Russian Revolution and of your brother workmen and peasants. Now, how can you accomplish this defence if you remain inactive in your trenches? Frequently only an offensive can repel or check a hostile offensive. Frequently those who await attack perish.

The position of the Parliamentary Party is not so strong in Ireland that its members ran afford to disclaim the responsibility of Irishment to assist in shaping their own self-government.

THE IRISH PROPOSALS.

The proposals of the Government for an Irishment will be in the hands of the Irish Parliamentary leaders to-day, says The Times.

This is understood that the Government have not adopted the expedient of exclusion by county option, which for a time fascinated the Nationalists, but apparently attracts them no longer. Partition is avoided, and the essential muity of Ireland preserved by the device of a Grand Council, which, it is hoped, will pave the way for a fuller and more intimate union. Both the Nationalists and the Irish Unionists have been summoned to meet to-day. They will then have the communication from the made upon the north-western corner of Bullecourt. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

AN IRISH SETTLEMENT. TO THE EDITOR OF THE INISH TIMES.

Sin,—Ine political situation in Iroland has changed immensely in the past twelve months, and the opinions of many, both on the Unionist and Assignate sides, nave also completely changed. Sir Edward Carson opposed the Home Rule Bill chiefly for two reasons—

(1) that he did not think that Ireland, as a Home Rule Bill chiefly for two reasons—
(1) that he did not think that Ireland, as a whole, was loyal enough to be entrusted with compute seignovernment; (2) that, if Ireland was to get frome Rule, the bill proposed by the liberal Party was totally wanting in many things, especially in the financial provisional rises of pay, and feeling a proper professional pride in their work.

The moral of this for Ireland is clear. Education is not, or ought not to be regarded as, a work of charity. It is of high importance to formous. A great war has proved that Ireland and Irish exiles, most of whom have always desired to see Ireland a self-d governed nation, have joined the Colours, therefore, Sir Edward's chief "cause dereistance" in Ireland believes, as he stated in the hiouse of Commons at the time, that the "inancial provisions were hopeloss for the derelopment of the country."

Sir Edward and his followers believe that, he has betrayed them for a "mess of pottage." A new party has arisen in Ireland which demands complete separation from England. It was lately supported in both Roscommon and Longford elections by many constitutionalistand the mond gother than the first that both Redmond and Ireland which demands complete separation from England. Sir.—It would be well, in the interests of the Church of Ireland, if the bishops would clear up the confusion which the Bishop of Down's interpretation leaves of the resolution of the House of Bishops leat year against "a policy of dismemberment." The Bishop of Down, as quoted in your issue to-day, says:
"Our reference was to the policy which would dismember the United Kingdom." Our reference was to the policy which would lismember the United Kingdom."

This certainly was not the interpretation put R.I. Regt—Aitley, 8099 Sgt. W. (Rathcoole).

is far higher than teachers here would care to face. That argument ought not to be entertained for a moment. It the standard is high, as it undoubtedly is, it is because those countries feel that teaching is too important a national work to be trusted to chance, and that it is worth their while to provide such inducements as will bring into, and retain in, the service of education those best fitted to do the work in the best way. They have no amateurs in their schools, no birds of passage waiting in patient or impatient expectation for something better to turn up; they have, instead, professional teachers of high competence, receiving professional pride in their work.

The moral of this for Ireland is clear. Education is not, or ought not to be regarded as, a

SIR. Since St. Patrick's time, and owing also to our race's lack of materialism, it has been in no sense true of Ireland that "the souls of the children spin on blindly in the dark." Their bodies to-day are admittedly valuable, and some of them are in danger of extinction. Until

WITH Hall's Wine, as with most other things of worth, one must now either cheapen quality to meet the price or maintain quality no matter what the price.

Owing to the War, the active tonic principles contained in Hall's Wine are costing five times as much as in pre-war days. The quality of Hall's Wine, always supreme, will remain supreme, but it has now become absolutely necessary to raise the price. Stored in every bottle of Hall's Wine is just that strong reserve of energy and vigour which everyone must be able to draw upon in order to keep fit and well in these strenuous times. Hall's Wine is still the ideal prescription in all cases of

DUBLIN, TUBSDAY EVENING.

The Dublin Stock and Share Markets were again quietly conducted to-day. Realisations in markets recently active held prices in check, but the undertone of firmness generally did not alter. Dunlop Rubber Ord. further advanced, and Marconi "Marine" Shares were again in demand. The Funds varied but little. Support was given to Breweries and Distilleries, but actual business was limited. Dublin Distillers Debs. rose &; Guinness Ord. hardened & to 23½, and the Pref. repeated 10½. Steam securities were firm in tone, but without any business being done. Marconi Wireless Ord. were a further 3d. better at 58s., while do. "Marine" Shares rose prominently to 46s. for a small lot. There was less support for Home Rails. Great Northern fell ½ to 86½, Great Southern and Western ½ to 73, and the Pref. ½ to 75; Great Northern Pref. also fetched 75. In Trams, Dublin United Ord. eased ½ to 7½. The tone of Parent Tyres was the turn easier. The Ord. fell ½d. to 25s. 3d. xd., and the Dfe. ½d. to 35s. 7½d., after earlier dealing at last price. The Pref. were firm at 16s. x.d. Dunlop Rubber Ord. opened Is. 6d. higher at 67s., but a few later were disposed of at 66s. 3d. The market finally closed buyers at the former figure. In Bakery Shares, Bolands Debs. were ½ higher at 7½. Inglis 5 p.c. £5 Debs. realised 4½ and Johnston Pref. 98s. 9d. Textiles were very fidle. Cottons fell ½d. to 47s. 6d., but Coats repeated 6½. Fine Cotton Spinners Ord. were bid up over 30s. on the much larger profits and increased dividend for the year, i.e., 10 p.c., against 8 p.c. for many years past. Lever Brothers "C" Pref. were scarce, and although bid for at a slight advance, did not change hands, as sellers looked for a further rise. Burke Pref. were 1s. 3d. better at 58s. 9d., and the Debs. were wanted. Kivuvu Rubber Shares fell 2s. to 15s., and J. C. Parkes and Sons Pref. 6d. to 15s. 3d.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS
IRREGULAR.

THE RUSSIAN FACTOR.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT)
LONDON, TURBDAY.

On the Stock Exchange the tone of markets showed some improvement, and the quotations of several specialities tended on the up-grade, though the general aspect of the House was irregular. For the moment the Russian portion continues to be the governing factor, and it is likely to remain so until events in Petrograd Among domestic securities gilt-edged descriptions and around 55½. The Colonial list was steady.

AMERICANS NOMINAL. Americans Numinal.

Americans though possessing a steadier undertone in sympathy with Wall street, marked narrow mixed changes where they were quoted at all. Local conditions were very nominal throughout.

And throughout.

CANADIANS AND MEXICANS DULL.

Canadian Pacifics moved quietly around 174½.

Grand Trunk senior Stocks were weaker during the first part of the day, but they concluded without net movement. Mexican Rails recorded an all-round decline of ½, and among Argentine Rails there were several losses of a similar extent. Buenos Ayres Great Westerns shed a point at 70. Entre Rios Pref. lost 1. San Paulos were a good spot among Brazilian Rails, advancing 1½ to 179½, but Leopoldinas, at 34, were rather weaker.

INDUSTRIALS INACTIVE.
